CATIC and CATIC Foundation Provide Financial Support to the Connecticut Community Law Center

ROCKY HILL, CT (February 7, 2018)...CATIC and CATIC Foundation are pleased to announce the pledge of $45,000 in support of the Connecticut Community Law Center, an initiative of the University of Connecticut School of Law and the Hartford County Bar Association. The Law Center is a postgraduate program for recently admitted lawyers, and provides office space and support to these lawyers as they establish their law practices. The subsidized working environment and professional mentoring allow these solo practitioners to provide legal services at a modest cost to low-income and moderate-income clients. Timothy Fisher, Dean of the Law School, stated, “We are grateful for this generous donation from CATIC and CATIC Foundation, which will allow us to help these clients who do not qualify for free legal services, but often do not have the financial resources to pay standard legal fees.”

James M. Czapiga, President and CEO of CATIC, noted, “The $45,000 donation is supported in large part by those CATIC members who, in redeeming their stock upon CATIC Financial’s recent corporate reorganization, decided to donate their redemption proceeds to CATIC Foundation. We wanted to do something with those donations that would benefit the Connecticut legal community and the Law Center does great work.” Robert S. Carey, Chairman of CATIC Foundation, stated, “We thank these members for their generous support of the Foundation and its charitable endeavors.”

CATIC and CATIC Foundation are pleased to have been able to provide this support to the Connecticut Community Law Center, and look forward to many more years of providing assistance to such worthy causes.
